

Access for All

Daisy Hill Station

Purpose of the project

Transport for Greater Manchester (TfGM), working in partnership with Northern, Network Rail and Story Contracting, will be delivering a number of accessibility improvements at Daisy Hill Station. A new passenger lift will be installed to provide step free access to and from the platform, situated at the rear of the station building adjacent to the staircase.

Work at Daisy Hill Station

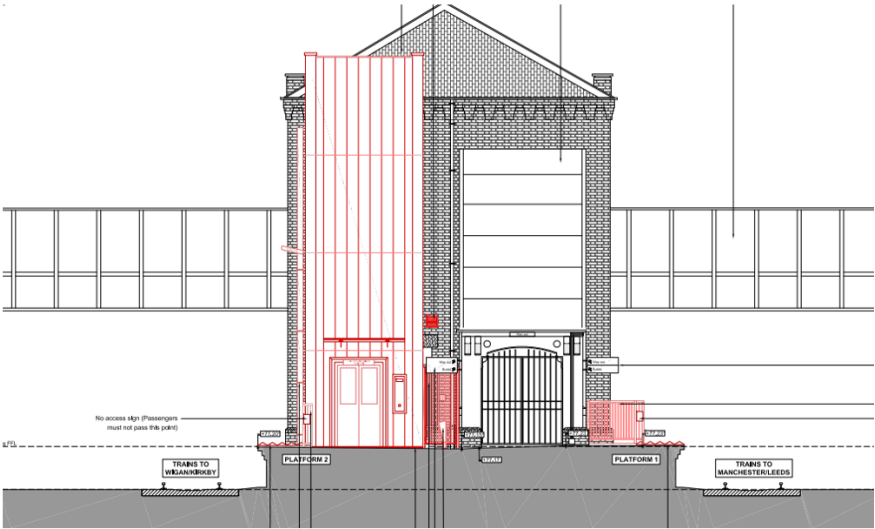

The site team will be undertaking general construction activities during midweek days and midweek nights due to the nature of working within an operational station. Saturday night working will also be required to service and support construction activities.

There are currently two station car parks at Daisy Hill; both will be affected during the works. The gravelled car park to the south west will be utilised as a site compound location for staff, equipment, and vehicles throughout duration of the scheme. The car park to the north will be used for approximately eight weeks in total, initially as site compound for a crane lift, and later for reconfiguration of the car park entrance and accessible parking spaces.

This will improve the accessible car parking facilities at the station but temporarily reduce availability of parking for a number of weeks throughout construction.

In order to facilitate the lift infrastructure there will be a reconfiguration of the ticket office and booking hall at the entrance of the station to create a new lift lobby area, meaning that the ticket office will be temporarily closed. Tickets can still be purchased online at www.northernrailway.co.uk prior to making a journey. The staffed ticket office will be reinstated once works are complete.

All work areas will be segregated from members of the public to minimise impact to station operation.

Access for All survey

TfGM are running a rail station survey as part of the access for all works programme and want your thoughts on Daisy Hill rail station in order to inform this process.
